

One part is people, even in Connecticut politics, won't admit to this and are a part of it. "America the beautiful." If a Black person threatened a White person in this manner, they would have already fired and arrested someone by now. Worst part is, they probably know who did it, because I know the people that discriminated and defrauded me. Investigation in code means the culprit won't be held responsible, like Executive Order 38. At least they did say "investigate". In Connecticut, White racist get promoted, especially in government. It is like when in Connecticut White people say they "feel uncomfortable," or "mistakes have been made" in regards to institutional racism. Then, they go on with their lives as if racism is no big deal. Believe me, I have been a victim of this for almost two decades, including having my home set afire. I am Still awaiting "appropriate" measures. "...With liberty and Justice for all..." You know, and all that jazz. "Play it again Sam." Yeah see, equality and all the Jazz.....yeah.

Racist display prompts investigation at Los Angeles-area hospital

By Yvonne Beltzer and Craig Fiegenrer, NBCLosAngeles.com, NBC4 Los Angeles

An investigation is underway after a doll with its face painted black was left hanging from a post at Kaiser Hospital in Riverside, Calif., where several African American employees work. Kaiser Hospital Riverside in Southern California is investigating what appears to be a racist display directed at several African-American employees who work in the hospital's IT Department. The staffers said they work in an area that is restricted to employees only, so when Xavier Fields arrived for work, he was shocked to find a doll with a racial slur across its chest hanging from a post near his work station.

"It's somebody who works within. It's a locked area. You don't go back there," Fields said. The doll had its face painted black and was dangling from a rope around its neck.

"You're not sure what to think. I got a supervisor and I let them know what's going on," said colleague Tyree Hale. The employees said they did not see signs that their complaint launched an immediate investigation. They gave the doll to a manager and said they were so stunned — even scared — that they didn't file a police report, but left it to the hospital to handle. Kaiser issued a statement which read: "We are moving to investigate the matter and will take appropriate action. We do not tolerate any form of discrimination in our workplace and will take all appropriate measures to address the full scope of this situation."